by reason of a defective specification or drawing.	•
x by reason of the patentee claiming more or less than he had the right t	o claim in the patent.
by reason of other errors.	,
At least one error upon which reissue is based is described below. If the reissue, such must be stated with an explanation as to the nature of the broad
I believe the '372 patent to be partly inoperative by reason of my clai in the '372 patent. For example, claim 1 of the '372 patent recites, at column food items," "a table of desired quantities of the selected food items at desi cooking time to prepare intervals relating to said table of selected food items. line 56, "clock means for establishing a current time." For at least these reasonight to claim in the '372 patent because my invention is not limited to the three containing food item information as recited in claim 1, and "clock means" as refeature of computing systems and need not be claimed.	5, lines 42-53, a "table of selected fred time intervals," and "a table of" Also, claim 1 recites at column 5, ons, claim 1 claims less than I had a e separate and distinct tables
Since claim 1 is the only independent claim in the '372 patent, it folloright to claim in the '372 patent. This also follows from the fact that none of the course of prosecution of the application which matured into the '372 patent, eicombination, discloses or suggests a system for predicting future food needs	e prior art references cited during the the taken alone or in any proper

Under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995, no persons are required to respond to a collection of information unless it displays a valid OMB control number.

The error in claiming less than I had a right to claim was first discovered on or about August 2, 2001, when a potential licensee informed me that the legal scope of claim 1 was less than I had a right to claim. In particular, it was discovered that there was no need to recite three separate and distinct tables containing related information about food items and a "clock means" to establish a current time in the way these claim elements are recited in claim 1 of the '372 patent. If I had known before the '372 patent had issued that I had claimed less than I had a right to claim, I would have amended the claim in order to secure the full legal scope to which I am entitled.
